MILK CONTROL BOARD SWORN INTO OFFICE; CONSIDER EMBARGO

Board, After Taking Oath, Goes Into Executive Session

NEW YORK BAN STILL ON

Believe Controversy Can Be Quickly Settled, Say Members

HARRISBURG, Jan. 24.—Pennsylvania's three-man Milk Control Board was sworn into office today and immediately went into executive session and began consideration of the embargo placed on Pennsylvania milk by Mayor LaGuardia of New York City.

The members, Edward A. Stanford, of Whitmarsh, chairman; John A. Barney Erie, and H. C. Reynolds, Factoryville, were given their oaths of office by Frank Wood, Deputy Secretary of the Commonwealth.

The Board met in the office of Deputy Attorney General Bernard Seigel, for the first time since its appointment by Governor Gifford Pinchot.

Stanford, who played a prominent part in drafting the milk control legislation under which the board was set up, was reported to be slated for appointment as counsel to the Board.

Today's meeting, hastily arranged last night, was for the purpose of considering Mayor LaGuardia's action in banning importation of milk from Pennsylvania producers in an effort to avert a threatened price war in New York. Stanford and Reynolds both have expressed the opinion that the controversy over the banning of Pennsylvania milk should be quickly settled. Some dairy farmers, however, mentioned the possibility of seeking a Federal Court injunction against the New York Mayor. It was expected the Board will take steps to point out to Mayor LaGuardia that the state's new Milk Control action prohibits Pennsylvania farmers from selling milk cheaper than the price set by New York dairy producers.

Adolph Bremer Blames Police and Press for Failure

By Thomas F. Cullen
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 24.—(INS)—With his wealthy young son, Edward G. Bremer, still missing seven days after he was kidnapped, Adolph Bremer today excoriated the police and certain newspapers, blaming them for his failure to establish contact with the abductors who are demanding $200,000 ransom.

In his appeal to police and newspapers to "keep out of this" Bremer criticized what he termed erroneous statements concerning his reputed negotiations with the kidnapping gang.

The wealthy brewer declared he would not trust the police because they "double crossed" him. He further asserted he would have nothing to do with the officers.

Reports that he had made contact with the kidnappers concerning the time and place for turning over the ransom money were declared to be untrue by the elder Bremer. Bremer added that persistent rumors stating that the kidnapped man would be released shortly and the staggering ransom paid were only serving to keep him from getting in touch with the gang.

Further, he said he has been pictured as a very wealthy man able to pay a ransom of $200,000 when, as a matter of fact, he cannot do this. Bremer, aged and a semi-invalid, said he was willing to deal with the abductors, however.

The session will be called at three o'clock. Hostesses will be Mrs. John J. Hargrave and Mrs. Roy Tracy.

DEATHS EXCEED BIRTHS IN MIDDLE BUCKS

Sixteen More People Died Than There Were Births In 1933

CO. SEAT LEADS BIRTHS

DOYLESTOWN, Jan. 24.—Race suicide in the districts comprising Doylestown Borough, Chalfont, New Hope and the townships of Warrington, Warwick, Buckingham, Doylestown, New Britain, Plumstead and Solebury, made a big gain in 1933, according to figures compiled by George F. Smith, of Doylestown, local Registrar for the State Bureau of Vital Statistics in these districts.

A total of 245 deaths for the year 1933 occurred in Registrar Smith's districts, compared to a total of only 195 births recorded, a loss of fifty in the population. In 1932 in the same districts the loss in population was 59 or a total loss of 109 in a two-year period.

An increase of sixteen deaths occurred in 1933, the records show, there being but 229 in 1932. Doylestown ranks first with a total of 66 deaths, an increase of two over 1932. Doylestown township is second with 35 deaths for 1933 compared to 41 for 1932. Buckingham township ranked third with a total of 34 compared to 23 for 1932, an increase of 11. Plumstead and Solebury townships each had 22 deaths in 1933, as compared with 19 for Plumstead and 14 for Solebury in 1932.

Chalfont showed a decrease of one death in 1933, where 19 deaths occurred as compared to 20 for the year 1932. New Hope also showed an increase of six for 1933. New Britain township showed a decrease of two deaths in 1933 with a total of 14. In Warrington township there were 13 deaths reported for the past year, exactly the same as 1932. Warwick township took last place in the death rate column with but four deaths for 1933, two less than the previous year.

Of the total number of deaths, one person reached the age of 96 years and two lived 93 years. Forty-five others ranged in age from eighty to ninety years. Eighty-six ranged in ages from seventy to eighty years. Fifty others died between the ages of sixty to seventy. Seventeen died between fifty and sixty and twelve between forty and fifty. Nine died between thirty and forty and five between twenty and thirty.

Included in the cause of deaths was one from electric shock, two from heat prostration, three from drowning, two killed in automobile accidents and one person burned to death.

Other causes of death were as follows: Chronic myocarditis, 36; arterio sclerosis, 24; chronic nephritis, 23; cerebral hemorrhage, 16; carcinoma, 16; apoplexy, 13; pneumonia, 11; tuberculosis, 3; suicide, 4; stillborn, 5.

Deaths in the various districts covered by Registrar Smith in 1933 as compared with 1932 were as follows:

|                  | 1932 | 1933 |
|------------------|------|------|
| Doylestown Boro. | 64   | 66   |
| New Hope         | 19   | 25   |
| Chalfont         | 20   | 19   |
| Warrington Twp.  | 13   | 13   |
| Warwick Twp.     | 6    | 4    |
| Buckingham Twp.  | 23   | 34   |
| Doylestown Twp.  | 41   | 35   |
| New Britain Twp. | 16   | 14   |
| Plumstead Twp.   | 19   | 22   |
| Solebury Twp.    | 17   | 22   |

Totals.....229 245
Doylestown borough led in the number of births for the year 1933 with a total of 99, compared to 131 for 1932.

Forty-six of the births were classified as non-residents of Doylestown in 1933, children born in the Doylestown Emergency Hospital. Solebury township ranked second in births in 1933 with 18, while Buckingham and Plumstead townships were visited by the stark seventeen times. There were fourteen births reported in Doylestown township; twelve in New Britain township; ten in New Hope; one in Warwick township, and not a single birth in Chalfont.

Cattle To Be Tested in Seven Districts of Bucks County

HORSE CO.'S RECORD

County Probation Officer To Have Office in Administration Building

During the next few weeks, according to information received from the office of County Agent William F. Greenwalt, approximately 6000 head of cattle on 850 premises in seven districts throughout Bucks county will be subjected to the tests for bovine tuberculosis.

One of the townships, Tinicum, will receive its initial test and the first annual tests will take place in Bedminster, New Britain and Haycock. Wrightstown will receive its fifth annual test, Buckingham township its fourth and Solebury its fifth.

Testing in Tinicum, Bedminster, New Britain, Buckingham and Solebury is scheduled to begin on Monday, January 29 and in Haycock and Wrightstown townships on Monday, February 19.

Approximately 800 head of cattle on 153 premises will be subjected to the initial tests in Tinicum. The testing in this district will be in charge of two state veterinarians, Dr. Swiegar and Dr. McGroarty.

Dr. North and Dr. Knorenchil will be in charge of the tests in Bedminster, where 1305 head on 215 premises will be given the first annual tests.

In New Britain township 366 head of cattle in 68 herds will receive the tests.

Approximately 1320 head of cattle, representing 170 herds will be tested in Buckingham township. Testing in Solebury, where the work will be done for the fifth year, will be in charge of Dr. William Lukens, New Hope. In this township 950 head of cattle in 108 herds will be tested.

About 360 head of cattle in 78 herds will be given the tests in Haycock and in Wrightstown 535 head representing 58 herds will be subjected to the tests.

Plans are underway by the Union Horse Company organized in 1835 for the purpose of "detecting and apprehending horse thieves and other villains" for the 100th birthday party of the association next year.

The 100th anniversary celebration will likely take place January 1, 1935.

FINED JURYMEN THEIR PAY

Philadelphia, Jan. 24.—Because they acquitted Thomas Cammarate on charges of running a number racket, the jurors in the case today were deprived of pay for their services. The jury fees for the ten men and two women, amounting to $21.00 each, were levied as fines by Municipal Judge John E. Walsh. "This is a miscarriage of justice," Judge Walsh remarked, "and a disgrace to yourselves as well as to the community. Because of your outrageous verdict I am going to discharge you from further service and fine you your whole pay."

MORRISVILLE COUNCIL NAMES BORO' ENGINEER

Expect New System To Effect Considerable Savings For Town

TO BE TOWN MANAGER

MORRISVILLE, Jan. 24.—With the election of Harry H. Lee, Jr., as borough engineer, Common Council expects to set up sort of a borough manager system for affairs of the municipality. While the salary of this employee will be set at $1,800, the new council expects to save the taxpayers at least $4,000 during 1934 through its economical and efficient management of affairs.

While $2,800 has been cut from the salaries of various employees, council expects to cut at least $1,200 more from the engineering fees, which have been on an hourly basis, and which cost $15,000 for a five-year period. While the new engineer is to get $1,800 per year, he will not only take care of all engineering but will supervise all borough work and take over some of the duties now held by the borough secretary and borough treasurer.

According to Councilman Elwood Kohl, chairman of the street committee, the new engineer will have more than his salary in supervision work. He will keep a close check on all purchases, on all borough property and on all borough work.

The new engineer will work under the direction of committees of council and will carry out their orders. He will be held responsible for every department of the borough—street, water works, light, public property, fire and sanitation—in fact, every department except the police, which will come under the sole jurisdiction of the mayor.

In the past much of this work was in the hands of the chairmen of the various committees with no one really responsible if the work was not carried out.

It is expected that Mr. Lee, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lee, of North Pennsylvania avenue, will assume his duties within the next week. The new engineer is a graduate of the Morrisville High School and of Penn State College. He graduated from the latter institution as a civil engineer.

FLAMES DESTROY SCHOOL

Philadelphia, Jan. 24.—Fanned to a fierce intensity by a howling wind, fire of undetermined origin today destroyed the parochial school building adjoining St. Veronica's Catholic Church in the northern section of the city. Two firemen were injured.

Three alarms were sounded, bringing more than a score of fire companies to the scene. After a three-hour battle, during which firemen concentrated on saving the church edifice, the parish house and another church property, the blaze was brought under control. The extent of the damage was not immediately determined.

VELEZ AND WEISSMULLER PART

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 24.—Lupe Velez, fiery little Mexican film actress, and her mate, Johnny Weissmuller, actor-swimmer, had separated. Miss Velez announced today, "I guess it's Hollywood; it's no use. We fight, we fight, we fight," Lupe said.

EASIER PERHAPS TO KIDNAP QUEEN OF ENGLAND THAN DORIS DUKE

By David P. Sentner
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
SOMERVILLE, N. J., Jan. 24.—(INS)—It would be easier perhaps to kidnap the Queen of England than Doris Duke, America's wealthiest heiress.

The world's richest debutante, with the super-safety of her 5,000-acre country estate, one half-mile from here, today took lightly the report that kidnapers were threatening her.

A member of her retinue denied published stories that she had fled from New York City to the security of Duke Farms after receiving a "death threat."

It was pointed out that Miss Duke receives a vast amount of mail including many demands for money from cranks.

Furthermore, the slender blonde and modish dollar-princess has ten hard-and-fast rules for thwarting the plans of potential kidnapers.

They are:

1. She has more guards than servants and each of her many servants

ASKS FOR MORE FUNDS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—President Roosevelt today will ask Congress for $350,000,000 with which to continue operation of his Civil Works program until the first of May. At the same time he will ask that $500,000,000 be appropriated for emergency relief of a general, direct nature. Legislative ways were already greased for speedy compliance with the President's request. The $350,000,000 for C. W. A. will carry the program through to its end, as the President sees it. Demand for continuance of C. W. A. through Spring continued to pour into the White House but President Roosevelt does not think this will be necessary.

EXTENDS THE TIME

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—The Senate today has passed a bill extending the time for complete construction of a bridge across the Delaware River near Trenton, New Jersey, by the Pennsylvania and Newark Railroads from August 24, 1934 until August 24, 1937.

WALMSLEY LEADING

New Orleans, La., Jan. 24.—The political dynasty that Huey Long carried out of the Louisiana Bayou country appeared tottering today as slowly mounting returns gave the King Fish's bitter rival, Mayor T. S. Walmsley, a commanding lead in yesterday's mayoralty election. With 152 out of a total of 262 precincts counted early today, Walmsley, who campaigned on a straight anti-Long ticket, was out in front with 25,261 votes.

PRINCE MDIVANI IN JAPAN

Tokyo, Jan. 24.—After successfully hurrying another barrier to his "world honeymoon" with the former Barbara Hutton, Woolworth heiress, Prince Alexis Mdivani arrived at Tokyo tonight in jovial spirits and immediately installed himself in an elaborate suite at the Imperial Hotel. The Prince spent most of the day aboard the liner Hikuni Maru at Yokohama where he was denied permission to enter Japan until 6 o'clock tonight, while immigration authorities investigated his "Georgian passport," the like of which they never had seen before.

COLORED PEOPLE PLAN A WEEK OF SERVICE

In Observance of "Better Racial Relations Week," February 21 to March 1

COMMITTEE IS BUSY

A committee appointed by the Colored Citizens of Bucks County is formulating plans for the observance of "Better Racial Relations Week," which activities will center around the birthday of Abraham Lincoln. This will also mark National Negro History Week, the purpose being to spread information about the achievement of the Negro since 1863. The Better Racial Relations Week is fostered by the Federal Churches of America.

The committee includes: the Rev. J. L. Mims, Bethel A. M. E. Church, Bristol, chairman; the Rev. E. D. Fells, Second Baptist Church, Bristol, vice chairman; the Rev. L. H. Whitte, Bristol, secretary; the Rev. M. W. Cohen, Newtown, financial secretary; Mrs. Ethel Gray, Langhorne, assistant secretary; Mrs. Elva Laws, Bristol, corresponding secretary; the Rev. M. Hamlin, Langhorne, treasurer.

The celebration will embrace various fields of activity, opening on Wednesday, Feb. 21st, with Jubilee Night.

GRANT PATENT TO RICHARD W. FRENCH

Perfects New Method For The Production of Zinc Oxide At Plant Here

APPLIED FOR IT IN 1930

The United States Patent Office in Washington yesterday granted to Richard W. French, Bristol, a patent for his new method for producing zinc oxide.

The patent has been pending since 1930 when the inventor first applied for it. He cited five claims of originality and improvement, all of which were approved yesterday. The rights have been assigned by Mr. French to the Superior Zinc Corporation of Philadelphia.

The method involves the use of by-product zinc residues containing alkali salts and carbonates. The salts are washed away after being made soluble by boiling and the residue calcinated.

John Rago Dies After Being ill Only One Week

A young and popular Italian resident of this borough was claimed by death today following a week's illness, during which he was confined to the Hahnemann Hospital in Philadelphia, in the person of John Rago, husband of Frances Principella Rago, and son of Michael and the late Marie Nicola Rago.

Besides his wife and three children and his parent, the deceased is survived by four sisters, Mrs. Mary Patti, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Rose Janicki, Mrs. Fannie Pasullo, Mrs. Anna Liberatori, of Bristol; a step-sister, Mrs. Lena Trumbetti, Philadelphia, and a step brother, Joseph Vandini.

The deceased was a life-long resident of Bristol, and was a member of the local order of Moose.

A host of friends will mourn his death.

Funeral arrangements, which are under the direction of Galzerano, have not as yet been completed.

WANT SEPARATE INCOME

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—The Treasury is staging a battle in secret sessions of the House Ways and Means Committee for legislation requiring husbands and wives to file single income tax returns, it was disclosed today. The proposal, it is estimated, would bring the government $40,000,000 more taxes each year and prevent fraud from fictitious transactions between husbands and wives.

CWA DISTRIBUTES $30,000 TO WORKERS IN CO. LAST WEEK

Period Ending January 18th Showed 2131 On Payroll

MARKS BIG ADVANCE

CWA Now Running Smoothly in Bucks County, It Is Stated

The sum of $30,000 was distributed to 2131 employees on 77 approved civil works projects in Bucks County last week.

This was revealed today by John S. Roberts, Jr., county administrator for CWA.

"Last week marked a big advance in the civil works movement in Bucks county," Roberts said. He explained: "During the week ended January 12 the county payroll included 1912 workers and amounted to $25,555.08. The payroll for the week ended January 19 was increased nearly $5,000 by the employment of more than one hundred men."

Bucks County was allocated 2,836 men and $48,791 by the State CWA headquarters. In comparison with other counties throughout the state the movement in Bucks county makes a good showing.

"The CWA is now running smoothly in Bucks county," said Roberts. "Instructions received from Harrisburg are being followed to the best of our ability."

"Exclusive of Federal and State projects, we have 2131 men working with a total expenditure of close to $100,000 as of January 18.

"Work on the 77 projects already approved for the county is under way. Only three of the jobs require materials. The latter will cost $20,000 and we expect to receive the allocation for the purpose before the end of the month. Meanwhile, however, we are proceeding with the preliminary work on these three projects."

"The CWA is now running smoothly in Bucks county," said Roberts. "Instructions received from Harrisburg are being followed to the best of our ability."

SUPER-HIGHWAYS

When the economic crash came and all government found itself bankrupt or perilously near the brink it was thought that the days of costly public improvements, such as great highway systems, were over for many years. Two years ago the prospects for a further and immediate extension of state systems of hard-surface roads were dark indeed.

Had anyone predicted two years ago that the depression would have just the opposite effect on public construction the world would have called him crazy and laughed at his hallucinations. And yet such a prophecy would have found realization.

Back in the good old days when it was thought federal, state, county and municipal governments were borrowing money like Allies and spending it faster than even the country's wealthiest state, New York, could afford four trans-state trunk-line highways wide enough to permit separation of truck and passenger traffic on four broad lanes. Today the federal government is seriously considering financing such a project as a part of its reemployment program.

Segregation of slow truck traffic to speed up passenger traffic and reduce congestion to a minimum will come in time. There are relatively few highways wide enough to permit it now but they must be built before a new era of prosperity puts millions of new cars, trucks and buses on the roads, if the highways are not to lose their usefulness.

GOLD

Economists are predicting that President Roosevelt's gold policy may lead to the permanent removal of gold coin from circulation in the United States. All gold and gold certificates have been called in and the minting and printing of gold discontinued but whether this famine of gold is to be permanent will depend largely upon the success of the administration's monetary policy and partly upon the attitude of future administrations.

But has Washington considered the seriousness of the situation?

What will aunts and uncles and grandparents use for Christmas gifts from now on? A crisp new bill in any denomination cannot take the place of a bright $5 gold piece.

Nor can paper money ever take the place of the double eagle in the hearts of the sons of the Forty-niners. They like their money fresh from the mine and heavy enough to wrestle. The Old West has never been able to bring itself to look upon paper as money, not when there were cartwheels and double eagles to jingle in jeans and palm and on the counter.

To the rest of the country the disappearance of gold coins means nothing except at Christmas time. There has been only $3,962,402, 013 in gold coins minted since 1793 and most of that has always rested in safe deposit boxes and home coin collections.

Maybe it's a coincidence, but the great American authors that Europe alone has the intelligence to appreciate are always the ones that knock America.

NEWS GLEANINGS FROM THE ADJACENT TOWNS; SOME INTERESTING BITS OF DAILY FICTION; SOCIAL EVENTS

HULMEVILLE

Visits were paid by Miss Dorothy Thorpe and Earl Foster to relatives in New York City and Long Island, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Comly and daughters, June and Leona, were visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Comly, Lansdale, recently.

Mrs. Annie Sohy and Miss Lena Reetz week-ended with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kofke, Pennington, N. J. Visitors at the residence of Mrs. Catherine Vornhold, Sunday, were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Alton and family, and Mrs. Mary Alton, Germantown.

The Hulmeville Welfare Committee and others who plan to aid in the community entertainment here on February 12th ask that residents reserve that night and attend the affair, thus benefitting the local welfare treasury. Funds are greatly needed in order to carry on certain phases of relief work, especially when appeals are made from time to time by those not receiving weekly relief orders. The committee at its meeting this week was high in its praise for the manner in which Mr. Robert Brien is conducting relief work, and voiced its appreciation for her commendable activity. The endeavor will be made easier for Mrs. Brien and her assistants if the treasury is enlarged.

FALLSINGTON

Mrs. Jennie Burton was a Thursday visitor of her daughter, Miss Madeline Burton, of Chestnut Hill.

HOLLYWOOD. . . . . Before many months are gone, you can look to see Ann Dvorak and Leslie Fenton shake the dust of Hollywood off their feet again. This strange pair have become deeply interested in bacteriology. They have a laboratory set up in their ranchhouse and next month they plan to enroll in advanced classes at the University of Southern California.

Then, to complete their academic background, Ann will apply for a leave of absence from Warners and the couple will sail for Europe to continue their studies at the University of Vienna.

If any other pair in Hollywood announced such a plan, eyebrows would raise in doubt. But Ann and Leslie walked out on film careers once before. They believe that common interests will help preserve their marriage. As for motion picture careers they can wait.

Hollywood matchmakers are still baffled over Ramon Navarro, but there'll be a wedding in the Mexican star's family next June.

Ramon's sister, Carmen Samanigo, is engaged to Carlos Navarro (odd, the similarity in names) and the two have set the date for June 4. Navarro acted as technical adviser on Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Viva Villa," and the two young people renewed an acquaintance that dates back to their childhood in Durango, Mexico.

Between now and June, the bridegroom-to-be plans to return to his native land and work on a motion picture project there.

Carmen will give up the idea of a dancing career and settle down to domesticity. Her professional debut which took place here also will be her last appearance before the public.

It takes the European stars to teach Hollywood a lesson in luxury. Carl Brisson, ex-middleweight champion of Europe and now one of the greatest matinee idols in England, has arrived in Hollywood with 18 trunks—he's much upset because three more were lost—and a car that rivals Lilian Harvey's palace on wheels.

While a Paramount studio delegation was greeting its tall, new star, Brisson's wife slipped off the train unnoticed, which was all part of a plan. The Danish actor's marriage has been kept in the back ground, but it is a pretty love story. He and his wife have known each other since babyhood. They were married so young—at 16—that they had to go to the King of Denmark for a special marriage license.

That was 16 years ago and though, for professional reasons, they are seldom seen in public together, Jean Hersholt and others of their friends say the union is a very happy one.

Even Beau Brummel Enjou must bow to Mala M-G-M's Eskimo star, who will attend the Hollywood premiere of his picture in the only $2,500 dress suit in the film capital. Mala's outfit is called a bird parka and is made of the finest Alaskan fur embroidered with designs of feathers.

QUICK GLIMPSES: They'll have you believe that the departure of Charles Lemaire for New York will leave Lila Lee very sad. The Broadway designer has given Lila a great rush since he has been at Fox and frankly admits he hates to leave her. . . . The wedding of Lola Lane and Director Al Hall will not take place this month after all, but it's still on the calendar. . . . Miriam Jordan is trying not to limp these days. She has water on the knee. . . . Connie Bennett's marquis is leaving for points Oriental soon. . . . There's another argument between Paramount and Bing Crosby about stardom. Bing positively refuses it for "We're Not Dressing." . . . The first person Maurice Chevalier went to see on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot was Jeanette MacDonald, so that disposes of their supposed quarrel. . . . The film colony is flocking to Rene Claire's "July 14," now showing at the Filmarte Theater. Marglene Dietrich was in the audience two nights hand-running. . . . Charlotte Henry doesn't have dates and has never been in a Hollywood night-club.

DID YOU KNOW—That Jean Parker is writing a novel on modern youth?

CHAPTER ONE

Stanley awakened with a feeling of excitement. For a moment she stared with sleep-blurred eyes at a splash of glazed chintz against an apricot tinted wall, at an oblong of golden sunlight sprawled across a dull green carpet. Then, as consciousness came flooding back to her, she sat up in bed and flung her arms about her slim knees.

She knew now why she felt excited. For the first time in three years, she was waking up in New York. For the first time in three years she was free to do exactly as she pleased. It suddenly seemed a bit overwhelming. Even frightening. It implied so much. This apartment, for instance. She had sub-let it from Alita Lawson. She thought, with a quick little flicker of amusement, that if Alita had used as good taste in choosing a husband, as she had obviously used in furnishing an apartment, she would not now be on her way to Paris in pursuit of a high-pressure divorce.

It was a charming apartment. There was something gay and intimate and sort of consoling about it. Stanley already felt at home in it. Relaxed. As she had never felt during the three years she had lived in one hotel after another, on the Continent.

But all that was over now. Quite definitely over. Stanley had suddenly decided to come home. After three years of passive non-resistance, she had without the slightest warning rebelled. Thinking about it this morning, sitting up quite straight in Alita's slim posted mahogany bed, Stanley decided that she had simply reached a point where further inaction to ennu was impossible. So she had left her Aunt Julie playing very bad contract on the Riviera and come back to New York. She wondered now why she had not done it before, why she had been content to drift so long in an environment that was not only unattractive to her, but actually distasteful. She decided that her father's sudden death and her aunt's deceiving protectiveness had undoubtedly been the reason. She was glad it was over. That she was back in New York. That it was early April and that she was young and lovely looking and quite free to do as she pleased.

As soon as she called a few people on the telephone, things would begin to happen to her. Pleasant things. Gay, careless, inconsequential things. The sort of things that hadn't happened to her during all the previous time she had been away.

She reached for the telephone, cradled it against her chin, smiled reflectively into the mirror that hung on the apricot tinted wall opposite her. Clever of Alita to have a mirror just there. It was enlightening to see exactly how you looked the first thing in the morning, before you had time to do anything about it.

Stanley frowned at herself critically. Nice hair, deeply, warmly brown, just brushing her shoulders. Nice skin, smooth and fragrant looking. A young, ardent mouth. Chin, a bit defensive, but not too much so. Gray eyes, very direct and unafraid, but a bit inquiring. The frown changed to a smile; she dismissed what she saw with a shrug. Five, ten years from now she would have to begin worrying, but now she was quite lovely. She accepted this loveliness with an almost even mixture of casualness and gratitude. She was casual about it as all people are casual about familiar possessions; but she was grateful for it too—especially in moments like this when life seemed to be pressing close about her, demanding things of her, promising things to her.

She balanced the telephone against her knees, lifted the receiver from its cradled book. Her voice when she gave the number was eagerly imperative. It would be nice to see Perry again—dance with him. In the moment before his voice came to her, clipped and lazily caressing, she visualized him perfectly. Tall, delightfully blond, altogether attractive. She had been half in love with Perry three years before—she wondered if she would be again. The possibility that she might made this moment before they actually spoke to each other exciting and important.

Stanley wasn't at all sure yet that she wanted Perry, but she was sure that she wanted a chance to make up her mind about it.

Perry didn't get her voice at once. It had been a long time since he had heard it. When he did he was pleasantly stirred. He remembered her perfectly. She had come out the same year that he had finished law school and gone into his father's office. He had given her a terrific rush. She had been his first serious love. She had been, in fact, his only serious love. He remembered how beautifully they had danced together and how violently he had made love to her. Then her father had died suddenly and an aunt had rushed her off to Europe. He had tried to get her to marry him but she had been very young and not nearly so much in love as he.

All these things went through Perry's mind as he exchanged pleasant and flattering banalities with her over the wire. He reached for an engagement book, drew a line through an appointment with his tailor and made an engagement with her for that afternoon. Beyond that he would not commit himself. If she was still beautiful and willing and unattached, he would probably fall in love with her again. But he had had a hard time getting over her once and he did not intend to repeat the experiment if he could help it. She had sounded all those things—beautiful and willing and unattached—but you never could tell—over a telephone anything was possible.

Nevertheless, it was with a certain vaguely familiar eagerness that he rang her bell that afternoon. He remembered the stout, pleasant looking woman who admitted him. Her name was Ellen and she had once been Stanley's nurse. She had been kind to him during the months that he had been so violently in love with Stanley. He had always felt that she liked him. He shook hands with her now, gave her the full benefit of his lazy, blue-eyed smile.

Stanley came to meet him halfway across the dim, fragrant drawing room. She was wearing a dull blue gown that clung closely to her slim breasts and hips. His first impression of her was that she was much taller than he remembered, and that her figure was much more exciting.

"You look so awfully grown-up," he told her, frowning at her slightly, after they had both said "how do you do" together.

"It's this dress, Perry, the long skirt, you know."

"Of course," he grinned comprehensively. "It makes you rather more lovely, darling, though I can't help regretting the loss of your legs. You had lovely legs, Stanley."

"I still have," she assured him gravely. "Only they've ceased to be an asset."

Across the tea table and behind a screen of light, pleasant conversation they took stock of each other. Stanley discovered that he really was just as blond and blue-eyed and completely likeable as he had remembered him. She decided that very likely she would see a great deal of him and that she might quite possibly get very much interested in him again. She wondered if he was uninvolved at the present time; she decided that he quite probably was or he would not have come to see her so soon. Having arrived at this conclusion, she knew she was immensely relieved that this was so. She wasn't at all sure yet that she wanted Perry, but she was sure that she wanted a chance to make up her mind about him.

Perry, by the time she had poured him a second cocktail and rung for more anchovy sandwiches, knew quite definitely that if he continued to see her, he would surely fall in love with her all over again. Knew in fact that he had really never stopped being in love with her. Decided that explained why he had passed in and out of so many casual affairs since. Nevertheless, he intended to take it easy. At twenty-nine one didn't toss his heart about as carelessly as one had at twenty-six. Stanley wasn't in love with him now, any more than she had been three years before. She might quite possibly never be. He would surely take it easy until he had some indication that something good would come of being otherwise.

JUNIORS OF TRAVEL CLUB ARE GUESTS OF CLUB AT LANGHORNE

Bristol Young Women Present A Play, "Daring Daughters"

The Junior Sorosis Club of Langhorne invited members of the Bristol Junior Travel Club to attend a meeting last evening in the Langhorne memorial house.

After the business meeting, the Bristol club entertained with a one-act play, "Daring Daughters." The play centers around a girl who is anxious to go to college and study to become a teacher. Her mother had planned for her daughter to become a society girl. After many difficult complications, the girl finally overcomes her mother's objections and is allowed to follow the career she desires.

Those taking part in the play were: Miss Anita Kinley, college girl; Miss Louise Lawrence, a friend; Miss Winifred Tracy, the mother; Miss Elizabeth Scott, the maid; Miss Frances Blanche, the 12-year-old sister; Mrs. E. Dugan, a friend.

Refreshments were served. About 12 members of the Bristol club attended.

Here and There

President Ross has appointed the following committee to prepare plans for the occasion: Frank Heaton, chairman; George MacReynolds, A. Russell Thomas, Arthur M. Eastburn, Frank K. Chestnut, Albert S. Worthington and George Ross.

The committee will plan to bring about an increased interest in the association that for many years was famous for entertainment of a most unique kind. Economic conditions of the past two years resulted in a big decrease in attendance at the annual meetings, but there was some evidence Saturday that the old spirit will be revived this year.

The association directed that a copy of "Bucks County Horse Companies Still Exist"—a newspaper magazine article written by A. Russell Thomas—be placed in the official records of the company.

Officers are: President, Thomas Ross, Doylestown; vice president, H. B. Rosenberger and Arthur M. Eastburn; secretary, Frank Heaton, Pebble Hill; treasurer, Warren Carver, Pebble Hill; directors, George McLaughlin, H. B. Rosenberger, Wesley Bunting, Robert L. Clymer, Arthur M. Eastburn and William L. Moore.

Miss L. Gertrude Bright, Probation officer of Bucks County, will maintain office quarters in the Bucks County Administration Building, Monument Square, Doylestown, and the quarters for juvenile delinquents in the Bucks County Detention Home, 86 North Broad street, will be discontinued.

Following action by the County Commissioners it was decided to provide quarters temporarily for the delinquent boys and girls at the Bucks County Home, south of this place.

The children, formerly housed in the detention home, and under the supervision of Miss Bright will now be kept in the county home until the Court decides what to do with them or Miss Bright succeeds in placing them.

Miss Bright's office in the administration building is located at the top of the stairway on the East Court street side of the building. She will maintain office hours between 9 and 11 o'clock daily.

Prior to the change made by the Commissioners the delinquents were kept by Miss Bright in the detention home and treated as "one of the family."

A social service worker with a successful record, Miss Bright often labored under the most trying difficulties in "housing" the boys and girls in her residence which she and the county maintained on a co-operative basis.

Several times the juvenile offenders became violent and caused her considerable difficulty.

BRISTOL CHALKS UP WIN WITH RIVERSIDE FIVE

By Jack Orr

(H. S. Asst. Publicity Agent)

Last night the "Strangers" of Bristol High earned their third straight victory as they chalked up an easy win from the Riverside quintet, 22-11. This game was played on the Riverside floor.

The game was raggedly played throughout and the officiating was poor, but the Bristol club seems to have hit its stride and is now going strong.

The first period was fairly even. Spencer opened with a field goal. Iannuzzi of Riverside came through with a double-decker to tie it up. Rue made a two-pointer for the visitors, while Iannuzzi finished the scoring in that canto with a gift throw. Score, end of period, Bristol, 4, Riverside, 3.

The second period the Red and Gray began to forge ahead. Spencer made a field goal and "Unk" Gallagher made two spectacular side shots for two baskets. Half-time score, Bristol, 10; Riverside, 6.

Bristol kept going and lengthened its lead in the third quarter. Score at the end of this canto: Riverside High, 9; Bristol High, 18.

In the final period the Red and Gray kept on top and made exactly double their opponents' score.

"Unk" Gallagher and "Jim" Spencer were high men for the visitors, while Iannuzzi and Edge were pace-setters for the Maroon and White.

In the second team game the Riverside Reserves beat the Bristol Seconds, 11-3. The large floor had a great deal to do with this defeat as the boys could not get started.

Friday the Bristol High sextet and quintet will clash with another Jersey opponent—Burlington.

CLINSTOCK FOE OF BRONOWICZ AT ARENA

TRENTON, Jan. 24.—Jim Clinstock, Cherokee Indian giant, and Frank Bronowicz, Polish champion, will collide in the feature two-fall out of three, 90 minute time limit windup at the Arena tonight.

A strong supporting card backs up the feature and the winners in the various matches will be paired for the show the following Wednesday under the auspices of the American Legion.

After a layoff of five weeks due to sickness, Bert Rubi, popular Hungarian, returns to the local scene in a 30 minute time limit contest against Murray Bremen, clever ex-amateur light-heavyweight champion.

Al (Red Devil) Gilewicz, once the idol of local mat addicts clashes in the one fall to a Polish semi-windup with Sid Nabors, husky Southerner, who defeated Abie Ginsberg last week when the latter was sent to the showers early by the referee for rough-house tactics.

Paul Boesch, ever popular favorite here, meets one of the sternest tests of his career when he comes to grips with Sam Cordavano, who waged a corking battle here with Jim Brown recently.

In bringing Bronowicz back for his second straight windup, Johnny Ipp felt that the vicious 90-minute draw that Frank fought with Ernie Dusek left the Pole with a moral victory. He easily earned the plaudits of the crowd when he left the ring after the Dusek donnybrook.

Clinstock is one of the top-flight men in the grappling realm and bids fair to accomplish what Ernie failed to do: pin Bronowicz.

The winner of this contest will meet either Ed Don George, Richard Shikat or Ray Steele the following week.

WHITE ELEPHANTS WIN OVER BRISTOL EAGLES

White Elephants defeated the Bristol Eagles 41 to 35 in a very interesting game in No. 4's hall last night.

The Eagles started the game with a bang and before the Elephants could find themselves the score was 9 to 2. But the half ended 15 to 10. Then came the scoring power of the evening, when led by "Joe" Roe and "Jimmy" Massilla, the Elephants ran wild and scored from every angle, and finally to take the lead and never to be pressed very hard. Joe Roe was high scorer for the winners with 15 points, with Tosti for the losers with 13.

In the first game, the Eagles' second team defeated the Elephants' second team, 21 to 18 in a very close game. The score at the half was 14 to 9. DiLissio led the winners with 9 points, while Williams led the losers with 7 points.

Line-up:

| White Elephants | Fd. G. | Fl. G. | Pts. |

THE WIND

O wind, so mighty and so proud,
Rush on o'er ocean and o'er land.
Deign not to heed the busy crowd
That in the ice-bound streets now stand.
But hasten o'er the snow-capped hills
To free our land from ice and snow.
For tired are we of winter chills,
Away now old wind, blow, oh, blow!
As heir, your shadow you may leave—
The cooling and refreshing breeze,
Which on some sweltering July eve
Will Summer's dreadful heat appease.
But long it dare not stay with us
For Autumn comes and with it brings,
The howling wind, so boisterous,—
Our snow-crowned friend, the Winter's king.
—Marie Lathrop.

TREASURY OFFERS SECURITIES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—Driving forward toward the Port of Recovery the Treasury today offered a billion dollars in short term securities to provide funds for the initial oiling of the economic machinery. This offer was the first of a series which by the end of June was expected to aggregate $10,000,000,000. This issue indicates there will be others, probably monthly, until June 30th.

STATE NEWS

BUTLER.—(INS)—Within ten years and one month six men have served on the Common Pleas bench of Butler County, either by election or appointment. Judge Aaron E. Reiber was completing a term as judge at the election in November, 1923, when Attorney John R. Henninger was elected to succeed him. Judge Reiber died after three years, and former Judge James M. Galbreath was appointed by former Governor John S. Fisher.

After 18 months Attorney James O. Campell was elected to the place. He died after two years, and Attorney Thomas W. Watson was appointed by Governor Gifford Pinchot to complete the incomplete term. At the election last November Judge Watson was defeated by Attorney John H. Wilson, who is holding his first court as President Judge of the county.

CUBA QUESTION UP

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—This government today was prepared to open discussions with the New Cuban regime for abrogation of the so-called Platt amendment under which the United States has the right to intervene in Cuba. This was learned in official circles here this morning following the granting of quick American recognition to the new government of President Carlos Mendicti. Secretary of State Hull intends to discuss the situation relative to the Platt amendment with President Roosevelt within the next few days.

JUST how important is the correct "form" in sport? Every branch of athletic endeavor has certain generally accepted rules, which are supposed to be followed by beginners who desire to become technically proficient in that particular sport. And yet many of the greatest sport stars of today do things all wrong from the standpoint of form.

Take the light heavyweight champion, Maxie Rosenbloom—you take him; I don't want him. Mr. Rosenbloom does everything that a good fighter is not supposed to do. He slaps with his open gloves. He makes a habit of leaning with his right. He lets his hands dangle at his sides instead of holding them up in orthodox fashion. And so on. Yet—he licks the fighters who do things "right."

Maxie throws punches from any old angle. He swings them from the floor. He chops punches down almost vertically on an opponent's jaw. In general, he behaves in the most disconcerting fashion when in the ring.

I think it was Dave Shade who, after getting licked twice in a row by Mr. Rosenbloom, pulled the classic enigma, "That guy does everything so wrong that he's right!"

There are many other cases of successful athletes who contradict all accepted standards of form in their lines of sport. Al Simmons, called by John McGraw "the nearest approach to the perfect ballplayer," and one of the greatest batsmen of all time, has a glaringly unorthodox batting stance. Al stands at the plate with the wrong foot forward, having one foot "in the bucket," as they say. Nevertheless, he gets his hits—and that is what they pay off on.

Joe McCluskey, America's greatest distance runner, is called "Shuffling Joe" because of his atrocious running form.

Jean Borotra, the bounding Basque, leaped about the tennis courts in most unorthodox fashion, rushing the net at the "wrong" times, etc. Now young Vivian McGrath, the Australian net ace, is causing the sticklers for form to cluck their tongues because of his new-fangled two-handed grip.

And, of course, Leo Diegel's queer putting stance and Charley Paddock's famous "leaping Lena" finish are other well-known examples of unorthodox form in sport.
